HMBR provides expert legal advice on all aspects of compliance with Title IX and related federal, state and local laws. We will identify specific changes needed to comply with the new rules and provide solutions for how colleges and universities can make those changes in a way that best serves their business needs and educational missions.

Here are some of the legal services we offer:

- Occasional or ongoing advice and counsel
- In-depth analysis of Title IX and related legal developments
- Insight on OCR decisions, investigations, and agreements
- Policies and procedures review
- Structural changes
- Expert review of draft investigative or adjudication decisions
- Strategic planning and communications
- Comprehensive guidance on how to comply with federal and state laws

To comply with the new Title IX regulations, colleges and universities will need to carefully review and revise their current policies, procedures and organizational structures. We can help.

External Services

Experienced HMBR attorneys are available to provide specific external services relating to the investigation and adjudication process. Upon request, we can offer these services on a flat fee basis to assist schools in budgeting costs for these processes.

We serve in the following roles:

- Investigators
- Hearing Officers
- University-appointed advisors
- Mediators
- Training Providers

Representation

HMBR has provided successful representation to numerous colleges and universities on matters pending before the U.S. Department of Education.

We advocate for our clients directly with various Department offices -- OCR, Federal Student Assistance (FSA), and the Offices of the Inspector General and the General Counsel on Title IX, Clery Act, Title IV funding and related issues. We also offer expert behind-the-scenes advice for our clients for working with the Department. We have used our expertise and first-hand experience with the Department to obtain excellent results for our clients, including the resolution of OCR Title IX investigations and changes to proposed FSA findings and fines.

Independent Consultants

HMBR attorneys frequently serve as an independent third-party consultant for colleges and universities on Title IX and Clery Act matters. We provide comprehensive and objective assessments of an institution's policies, procedures and practices. These assessments can be extremely valuable both for the institution and its community, and also to demonstrate compliance to federal and state officials.
